Colorado Privacy Act

The Colorado Privacy Act (“CPA”) provides consumers with certain rights related to their personal data. Under the Act, the CPA provides five main rights for the consumer:

Right of access. You have the right to confirm whether a controller is processing your personal data and to have the sole right to access your personal data.

Right to correction. You have the right to correct inaccuracies in any personal data, taking into account the nature of the personal data and the purposes of the processing of your personal data.

Right to delete. You have the right to delete personal data concerning the consumer.

Right to data portability. You have the right to obtain your personal data in a portable and, to the extent technically feasible, readily usable format that allows you the consumer to transmit the data to another entity without hindrance.

Right to opt out. You have the right to opt out of the processing of your personal data purposes of:

- targeted advertising;
- the sale of personal data, or
- profiling in furtherance of decisions that produce legal or similarly significant effects you as the consumer.”

Right to appeal. The CPA also provides you the right to appeal a business’ denial to take action within a reasonable time period. A business must respond to a request within 45 days of receipt and may subsequently extend that deadline by an additional 45 days when reasonably necessary. When a business elects to extend that deadline, it must notify you within the initial 45-day response period.

If you are a Colorado resident and would like to exercise any such rights, please send a request to data.enquiries@accredited-inc.com.

Massachusetts Information Privacy Act

MGL c.214, § 1B Right of Privacy of the Massachusetts Information Privacy Act (MIPA) provides that any Massachusetts resident (resident) shall have a right against unreasonable, substantial, or serious interference with his privacy. Information may only be collected with the resident’s express permission and any company that holds such information must immediately delete upon a request to do so from the impacted resident.
